“New Voices on Primo Levi” is the title given this year to the symposium organized by the Centro Primo Levi [2], in collaboration with New York University Casa Italiana Zerilli Marimò [3] and the Italian Cultural Institute [4].

On September 8, 9, 15, at 7 pm, New York audience is invited to participate to a series of debates and presentations focused on the figure of the famous Jewish writer. The aim is to reinterpret Levi’s works and vision in the light of his positions both as a political and public figure.

Rediscovered by the youngest readers, Levi is also object of study for world experts and emerging scholars who for the occasion will gather to discuss the role of his secular humanism in the contemporary modern society.

Among the speakers stand out the names of Franco Baldasso (New York University), Uri Cohen (Columbia University), Sergio Parussa (Wesley College), Luigi Dei (University of Florence), Robert Weil (WW Norton), Andrea Fiano (Centro Primo Levi), Marc Greif (American Prospect, London Review of Books), Moni Ovadia (actor and playwright).

Operating under the auspices of the Consulate General of Italy in New York and in collaboration with the Italian Association for Jewish Studies [5], Centro Primo Levi pursues the mission of studying the history and culture of Italian Jewry with the purpose of sharing, promoting and cultivating it.
